Safety
Posted by MiGifToU - 05 Mar 2012 00:00

_____

Round Pens have the 5 foot or 6 ft railing ~ and I have read where you say to be careful as to choose something that is not easy for a leg to be caught in ~ all round pens that I have seen have the bars so what should we do to protect against this issue

Thanks

==========

Re: Safety
Posted by warren - 05 Mar 2012 00:00

_____

Some metal panels have small loops at the bottom corners. These types of panels are popular but I would not recommend using them as a foot could possibly get in the loop. Also metal panels that cannot withstand getting kicked or stepped on may bend and create a sharp edge. Sometimes plywood is attached to the inside of the panels making it a solid wall. The plywood should be thick enough so that a horse cannot kick through it. Hope this helps answer your question.

==========